

Meet one of our newest CPAs!

“In this day and age, it can be difficult to figure out what career path to take. Doing your CPA can benefit you in a large number of ways. It has an overarching and long-lasting benefit.”

As a Corporate Accountant at Provincial Credit Union Ltd., Jeremy Koughan appreciates working for an organization that cares about the community and its people — not just the bottom line. Much of Jeremy’s role focusses on financial reporting and auditing processes that remain key to ensuring the best interests of credit union members.

His job choice reflects his long-time interest in accounting. Jeremy, who grew up on the Loyalist Road and now lives in Elmwood, first took accounting courses in high school. He further pursued his studies through an Accounting Technology Diploma at Holland College, a Bachelor of Business Studies and Accounting Specialization at the University of Prince Edward Island, and accounting work with Grant Thornton LLP all before completing his CPA in 2020. The CPA program helps with practical aspects of his role, like reporting and assurance, but also provides him with broader knowledge to plan and see the larger picture.

Like his employer, Jeremy makes community a priority. He volunteers as a board member and treasurer for the PEI Cerebral Palsy Association and takes part in recreational baseball and hockey.

In addition to accounting, Jeremy finds himself curious about entrepreneurship. He believes the CPA program provides benefits like strategic thinking and problem-solving that will help him continue to forge his path.
